I have a friend who looks dif - ferent from me. He
I have a friend, and his name's hard to say.
I have a friend, and he's taught me a lot.

comes from far a - way o - ver the sea. He speaks a lang - uage I
He - doe - sn't play games that I play, but he can run and jump Though we look dif - ferent; in - side we're not. We love each o - ther, and can't un - der - stand, but we were friends when he held out his high and pre - tend and when he's smi - ling I know he's my we're glad he came. My friend looks dif - ferent but we are the hand. We be - came friends when he held out his hand.

friend He smiles at me and I know he's my friend.
same. We may look dif - ferent; in - side we're the same.
