

Symphony N° 4. Op. 98.

This Fourth Symphony is universally recognized as the most individual of all Brahms' works of this class. Its initial performance took place at Meiningen, under the direction of von Bülow and Brahms himself. It is claimed that this work contains more of Brahms' original individuality than any of his other works. The same organic unity which characterizes the other three symphonies in such marked degree is also found in this, though the various movements illustrate different ideas.
